

Artwork: Past Present Future

Artist: Stephen Hitchin

Medium: Steel Sculpture

Date: 4th December 2009

Location: Bootle Oriel Road Station

Merseytravel commissioned local artist Stephen Hitchin to create this striking piece of public art that stands over eight meters tall at Bootle Oriel Road station.

The sculpture came about as part of a multi-million pound project to modernise the station, making it fit for the 21st century. The intention of the artwork is to celebrate the growth of Bootle and the surrounding area, while recognising the importance of its past.

Hitchin's huge laser-cut steel sculpture contains images of Bootle and Liverpool, referencing some key events in Bootle's historic past.

Click here for further information on the artist Stephen Hitchin and his work.